

Death of Robert Gray.

Robert Gray died Saturday night, Sept. 26th, at about 11 o'clock at the home of his son-in-law, John Campbell in this city; of paralysis aged 70 years, 10 months and 18 days. About two years ago he suffered a severe stroke and has since been an invalid, though for the past few weeks he had been feeling unusually well for him. He came to Giltner three weeks ago from Oklahoma, his wife, a son and daughter coming on to Harvard to visit Mr. and Mrs. Campbell. Mrs. Gray departed a few days later for Ballagh to spend a short time with her daughter, Mrs. David Ward, whose husband and two children died July 28th, from eating canned sardines. She returned Monday evening.

Mr. Gray came from Giltner Saturday forenoon and said he felt better than he had for many a day, and had planned to go down town in the afternoon to figure on a bill of lumber for a home, having decided to locate here permanently. He went out doors sometime after dinner, but his absence was not noticed until between 3 and 4 o'clock, when search discovered him in the water closet in an unconscious stupor. No one but women were home, but they managed to get him into the house and onto a bed and then summoned medical assistance. The physician pronounced it another paralytic stroke and predicted that death would ensue before morning. The man lingered until death claimed him as above stated, never once showing any sign of consciousness. Two daughters and a son, and a son-in-law and other relatives, and two army comrades, were with him at the end.

Funeral services were held at the M. E. church Tuesday afternoon, Rev. E. H. Gideon officiating. Members of Richardson Post No. 60, G. A. R., served as bearers and escort, and the interment was made in accordance with the Grand Army ritual.

Robert Gray was born in Garland, Me., November 8, 1832. While yet a young man he removed to Missouri, in which state he resided at the breaking out of the great civil war. He was a strong Union man and because of this, like many others, suffered extreme persecution and was finally compelled to leave the state, crossing over to Illinois. Here in November 1861, he enlisted for the war, serving about four years in Co. 3 D and H, 26th, Illinois infantry, being with his command continuously until final muster out in 1865. He was in every battle and skirmish in which his regiment was engaged and marched with Sherman to the Sea. He came to Nebraska after the close of the war, locating in the eastern part of the state. March 13, 1867, he was married to Isabelle Pratt. To them seven children were born, all of whom are living, viz: Robert L., Kremlin, Okla.; Mrs. Eva Oldsburg, Kremlin, Okla.; Mrs. Anna Ward, Ballagh, Neb.; Mrs. H. H. Hunnicut, Giltner; Mrs. John Campbell, Master Joy R. and Miss Florence Gray, Harvard. These were all present at the funeral except Mrs. Ward, who was unable to come.

In 1886, Mr. Gray removed with his family to Hamilton county, Nebr., where he resided about twelve miles northwest of Harvard until 1900, when he removed to Garfield county, Okla. Was baptized in the M. E. church at Harvard July 17, 1902, while here on a visit. He was a man of sterling character, loyal and true, and will be greatly missed in the circles in which he moved.
